Halicz, and take 14,000 prisoners in six days.

The Austrian lines have been broken in several places and they are in full retreat before the victorious Russians.

A cyclone struck Brooks, Alta.
on Monday and did considerable damage. Several buildings were blown down.

There was a big turnout of people, on Tuesday, when the Mixed Farming Train visited Monitor. Great interest was taken in the various exhibits carried by the train. To many,
the time was far too short, in which to get the full benefit of the exhibits.

During the storm on Wednesday, considerable hail fell.
Crops around Whitten, and
New Bridgen were damaged.

In the New Bridgen district
many of the farmers report a total loss, while others went from 25 to 75 per cent damage.

Bob Bowers returned last night, after making a round of all the fairs.

The Squire's Sweetheart

— BY —

KATHARINE TYNAN

WARD, LOCK & CO., LIMITED
London, Melbourne, and Toronto

Mrs. Bartlett had always been a silent person in his experience of her. Now she talked as though under the influence of excitement.

"Go round the world while you can, sir," she said. "You'll never have a second honeymoon."

The Squire laughed, amused by Mrs. Bartlett's interest in his affairs. With the prospect of getting Dolly away he had resolved to put Cooper out of his mind. The man did not belong to Silverdale and it was well-known that his brother-in-law was heartily tired of his presence. He would have taken his shadow off the place before he and Dolly came back. And if not—he lifted his head proudly—he would be able to protect his own.

"You will go with Miss Egerton to London, please, Mrs. Bartlett," he said, "and you will take great care of her for me, for she is my precious." "Most young ladies would think me a queer old sort of maid," said Mrs. Bartlett, who reverted at times to her Irish speech. "Not Miss Egerton. She didn't look at me like as if I was a toad or an carwig. I watched her face that day, and there was nothing but kindness in it. I'll go, sir, and I'll guard her with my life. With the blessing of God I'll keep her safe for you."

The Squire put down what seemed the over-emphasis of her speech as an Irish picturesqueness. Of course, she could know nothing.

"You will be making me your debtor," he said gently, and was embarrassed by the fervor of the answer: "Sure wouldn't I lay down my life to please you, sir?"

The next day, Dolly Egerton, accompanied by Mrs. Bartlett, heavily veiled, went up to London, taking the sunshine out of Silverdale for her lover.

CHAPTER XIV.

The Continental Express

It was now September, and the leaves had begun to turn yellow and drop from the boughs in Kensington Gardens, where Dolly and Mrs. Bartlett liked to walk, unless the Squire was in town, when he was Dolly's companion.

The wedding was fixed for the first week in October. Dolly was getting her trousseau. Lady Leyes, a tall, beautiful young widow, had come to the studios, and had taken a violent fancy to this new soft radiant Dolly; and Lionel Egerton, to his wife's obvious annoyance, had discovered that Dolly needed an outfit for her marriage, and had fished up a twenty-pound note and put it into Dolly's hand, closing her fingers tightly upon it.

It was wonderful how far the twenty pounds went in Lady Leyes's experienced hands. She saw to it that Dolly had a modest but pretty trousseau, excellent of its kind, which could be supplemented in Paris, where the bride would have plenty of money to play with, and the Squire should have reached his seventh heaven in paying his wife's bills.

The twenty pounds was certainly wonderfully elastic. Dolly was too beatifically in love to be very curious over the details of her trousseau, although she delighted in the pretty things, fingering with a most rapturous and dreamy expression on her face. The wedding gown, of plain, thick, white silk, simply made, was Lady Leyes's gift to the bride, and the wedding breakfast was to be given at her house in Sloane Street.

As the time of the wedding drew near her ladyship, who was accustomed to having her own way in most things, was very anxious to carry Dolly off to Sloane Street. But Dolly preferred to stay, and the Squire agreed the reason and sympathized with it. At Alice Leyes's house Dolly would have been caught into a whirl. Lady Leyes was restless—must always be doing something—and had a finger in every social and philanthropic pie of fashionable London. Whereas Dolly, taking her happily and quietly, seemed to have a need for a passionate contemplation. She had developed a gift, she said to her lover, for sitting quietly, doing nothing in particular, only contemplating the wonderful thing God had given her. The queer expression was gone from her face. She sat, light-stepping, like a flame of joy.

It was obvious that the two lovers stood on the plane of felicity. Mrs. Bartlett, going about very quietly, cooking in the absurd little kitchen of the studios instead of having cooked food sent in from Bakers, or Harrods, or the Stores, as the other studioites did, washing up in the miniature scullery, used to grow heart-warm thinking upon their happiness. She loved the Squire like his dog, and as he complained, took a preposterously exaggerated view of her indebtedness to him. She had accepted Dolly first for the Squire's sake, afterwards for her own. Dolly had always looked at her as though she found her pleasant to look upon, and had so unlocked the door of the poor disfigured, once pretty woman's heart.

Mrs. Bartlett, closely veiled, did wonders in the way of marketing. She was a born cook, and she had the French thrift in buying and recklessness when it was a question of the proper ingredient. She compounded wonderful things in marmalades and casseroles for the delectation of the lovers, while she said to herself, with a half-veiled humor, that they would not know a volunteer from sawdust, all things being the same to their absorption in each other.

Dolly gave humorous accounts to her Squire of the marketing expeditions she went on with Mrs. Bartlett, who was Kate to her by this time. She would go into the smart Kensington shops, and not only select infinitesimal portions of this, that and the other thing, and insist on having them, but would attempt to beat down the prices and sometimes succeed.

"Glory to goodness, miss, you wouldn't be giving them the what I ask!" was her incredulous remark on the first occasion she had gone marketing with Dolly, before she had taken over the entire responsibility. "Hand me over that young man," she would say to an assistant in a big shop, "but the price will be one and six instead of two and six. I bought him yesterday." And very often she succeeded in getting the thing she wanted at a substantial reduction.

Dolly explained that these bargains, although humorous, were somewhat embarrassing for her.

There came a morning when she positively refused to accompany Kate. The Squire was arriving in the afternoon and Kate was doing something special in the way of an evening meal, even while she complained that it was all wasted on Miss Dolly and Mr. Meyrick.

Unwillingly, at last she left Dolly sitting by the Round Pond in Kensington Gardens with a sketch book in her hand while she went in search of some of the things she needed. She dealt in one shop for one thing, at another for a second, and so on, and she made Dolly laugh by telling her that bacon at one shop was three-farthings a pound cheaper than at another, and just as good. Dolly was not sure sometimes that Kate did not tell her such things to make her laugh. Dolly happy had a laughter that was worth capturing. The sober Squire found himself lying in wait for it since she had been his, and the old discontented, over-clouded Dolly changed to something joyous and young. Never now did he see in her face that strange air of listening which he remembered with a cold chill at his heart. Her eyes had no mist over them now. He said to himself happily that his love had escaped that evil influence over her life. The power of the wicked had been broken. She had come out of the shadows that lay thickly about her in the early days when he knew her first.

Neglecting the Bible

Quite apart from its moral and religious bearings, the neglect of the Bible involves a cultural handicap worth noting. It involves a cramping of the popular vocabulary, as no other literary masterpiece is such a well of English pure and undefiled. It involves a dulling of literary perceptions, as literature abounds in Biblical allusions which every reader of the Bible instantly understands, but which only readers of the Bible ever can. Finally, it involves a failure to respond to many a good joke, an astonishing percentage of the best jokes are nothing more or less than Biblical allusions.—Chicago Tribune.

"Ma, I can tell you all about the calories in our food—"

"No, you can't, Mary Jane. There ain't none. The man I deal with keeps everything in his store covered up."

"How are you getting on with the speech you were going to deliver?"

"Fine," replied Senator Sorghum. "I've found so many things I can leave out without spoiling the sense that maybe I won't deliver it at all."

A Generous Offer

Well-Known Firm Is Giving Away Free Samples for the Asking

There are many remedies for various ills placed upon the market, some of which enjoy wide-spread reputations, built upon their proven worth; while the popularity of others is but transient. When one is ill, there is a strong disinclination to experiment, and the wise man or woman will usually make use of a remedy that has an established reputation. There is perhaps no better known or more reputable firm of manufacturing chemists than that of Dr. Cassell's Co., Ltd., Manchester, England. Particularly patent will this statement be to those who have come to Canada from the mother country. Dr. Cassell's Tablets is not a new remedy nor experiment, but one of proven worth, and the numerous published testimonials bear ample verification to this fact.

Although this sterling remedy is well-known to the majority of the people, yet to those who have not put it to the test, the proprietors will gladly send a free sample on receipt of five cents to cover cost of mailing and packing. In writing for the free sample, address correspondence to Harold F. Ritchie & Co., Ltd., 10 McCaul street, Toronto.

Dr. Cassell's Tablets are most highly recommended in the treatment of Dyspepsia, Kidney Trouble, Sleeplessness, Anæmia, Nervousness, Palpitation and weakness in children. The reader who may be suffering can not do better than write at once to the above address and secure a generous sample package of this remedy entirely without cost.

"Does your husband play cards for money?"

"Yes, but he's just as big a failure in that as he is in business."

Electric Plants for the Farm

Small Equipments Save Much Labor on the Farm and in the Farm Home

One of the recognized necessities in connection with our increased agricultural production is better and more attractive conditions on the farm, and among the many suggestions the use of electricity should be considered. Electric power is a great convenience in the farm home, and saves much time to the farm help. The farm or country home situated within the area of electric system of transmission or distribution is fortunate, but the vast majority must look to the small isolated plant.

This alternative, however, is now much more promising than a few years ago. Many factories manufacture this type of equipment, the operation of the plants has been simplified and cost has been much reduced.

These small plants may be advantageously used for many domestic purposes in addition to lighting, such as ironing, washing, toasting, pumping water, etc.; and also for the very important use of charging storage batteries.

There are a number of these small plants now on the Canadian market, ranging in size from 175 watts, and costing $300 upward. Six different types were described in a recent electrical magazine, some using storage batteries in conjunction, and generally using a gasoline engine as a prime mover. They are usually operated at a very low voltage. These small plants are perfectly safe, so far as the handling of the electric energy is concerned.—L.G.D.

Note and Comment

Owing to Dominion Day and the Stampede coming in the same week, and the 'crew' celebrating both events, many items were left out of last week's issue. Having recovered from the effects we are endeavoring to make up for lost time.

Appeals were heard from the
C. P. R., C. Connah and Mrs. S.
Duncan against the School assessment. C. Connah was successful in having his reduced several hundred as was also
Mrs. Duncan. The C. P. R. convinced the School Board of the error of their ways, and the assessment of all town lots was put down to the actual purchase price.

The mill rate has been raised from 8 mills, last year, to 17 1/2
mills this year.

The sittings of the Court of Revision, for the Village, was held a week ago, the only appeal being from the C. P. R.

After hearing the arguments of the Company's representative the Council decided to reduce the assessment to the original basis. It is said that the mill rate will now be doubled, and the Village will in this way be enabled to raise enough money to carry on the affairs of the town and put in the much needed sidewalks, streets, etc.

Watch for the Gray-Dort

The Stampede, up in the Hills was a disappointment to most of those who journeyed out to it.
The events were only mediocre and were dragged along in a very tiresome manner.

Very little or no accommodation was provided for the public, on or anywhere near the grounds, and the big crowd was naturally at a loss in this respect. Better results would have been obtained if the thing had been confined to only one day. Still, the crowd made the most of it, and enjoyed the meetings with old friends and acquaintances.

SYMPATHY

If only words of sympathy were all
they ever got,
How poor the poor on earth would be,
how dismal, too, their lot.
If kindly people only talked the kindness that they feel,
How grim the lives of all would be whose sufferings were real.

If speech were all we had to give a brother in his need,
Then misery would rule the world and throttle every creed,
For hungry folks would starve to death
and wounded brothers die.
And, gasping, say that every word men uttered was a lie.

If we could only tell to friends the sympathy we feel,
We'd hunger for a better way to prove that it was real;
We'd never hear a tale of woe or see another's needs
But what we'd pray, that we might show our sympathy by deeds.

Well, God has given us all the power to prove that we are kind—
Has sent the strength to help the weak
and eyes to lead the blind,
And ears to hear the call for help, as well as singing birds—
And all we give to those distressed is often only words.

—Edgar A. Guest.

Tenders for Schoolhouse

Sealed Tenders will be received by the Board of Trustees of School District No. 303, Monitor, at the Office of the Secretary-Treasurer, up to noon July 20th 1917, for the erection of a frame school building. Plans and specifications may be obtained from the Department of Education, Edmonton, or from the Secretary-Treasurer on payment of a deposit of $5.00 which will be returned on receipt of a bona fide tender with plans and specifications. The lowest or any tender will not necessarily be accepted.

W. G. MacKenzie

PROVINCE OF ALBERTA SAVINGS CERTIFICATES

The Deputy Provincial Treasurer, Edmonton, reports that Provincial Savings Certificates
are meeting with a splendid reception from the public.

Under this plan one may deposit his Savings and be sure of receiving a good interest rate with the solid security of the Government behind it. There has been a steady flow of deposits into the Provincial Treasury, the amounts received from individual investors varying from $5.00 to sums representing a modest fortune. The average daily receipts continue to increase in amount as time goes on, evidencing the growing popularity of the idea. As the Savings Certificates Act was intended primarily for the benefit of residents of the Province of Alberta, deposits from outside the Province were hardly looked for, but considerable sums have been received from neighboring Provinces. The advantage of obtaining 5% and being able to withdraw the deposit on demand without any unnecessary formality naturally appeals to investors, especially when interest is allowed for the full time the money remains on deposit, however short it may be. Another attractive feature is the option of having interest compounded half-yearly, or if preferred, of having it forwarded yearly or half-yearly

The mayor of a tough border town was about to engage a preacher for the new church.

"Parson, you aren't by any chance a Baptist, are you?"

"Why, no, not necessarily.
Why? 'Well, I was just again'
to say we have to haul our water twelve miles."

Tenders are now being called for the erection of a school, in Monitor. After paying rent for about four years and moving all over the town, it begins to look as if this district is to have a final resting place for its school furnishings.

What Will Decide the War?

William Denman, chairman of the Shipping Board of the United States, is not an optimist in his outlook of the war.

He says: "One of three things must happen to save the situation—Germany must be defeated by the land forces of the Allies, or she must be blown up from inside by means of a revolution, or some way of defeating the submarines must be devised. In the meantime we must build all the ships we can, as fast as we can, and always with the thought, as each vessel departs for the other side, that its cargo for our Allies may be the one thing needful for the winning of the war."

Protect the child from the ravages of worms by using Mother Graves' Worm Exterminator. It is a standard remedy, and years of use have enhanced its reputation.

80,000 Pounds For Red Cross

Collections in Australia for the British Red Cross for the past month amounted to 80,000 pounds ($400,000).

At a great and enthusiastic demonstration at the town hall, Melbourne, Premier Hughes made a speech, in the course of which he said that the great heart of Australia beat in unison with the rest of the Empire. They were now able to say with absolute assurance that Australia would "be there."

Miller's Worm Powders were devised to promptly relieve children who suffer from the ravages of worms. It is a simple preparation without shock or injury to the most sensitive system. They act thoroughly and painlessly, and though in some cases they may cause vomiting, that is an indication of their powerful action and not of any nauseating property.

Stick by the Cow

Hoard's Dairyman—Some dairy farmers are selling a portion of their herds. The scarcity of feeds and the high prices of grain have led them to believe that it is feasible to dispose of some of their cows. We have good reasons to believe that the dairy farmer who keeps his cows will in the end be in better shape for making a profit than the man who materially reduces his herd.

The effort to secure a larger production of grain and the high prices for wheat and corn have led some to believe that it will be to their advantage to sell grain to the elevator rather than to the cow. We must ever keep in mind that a well-balanced agriculture is more profitable than an over production of certain foods and a shortage of other food products.—Hoard's Dairyman.

"There's a Reason"

British Agriculture

For 20 per cent. Reduction in English Live Stock

The expectation is, according to The Farmer and Stock Breeder, that live stock holdings in the United Kingdom will have to be reduced by 20 per cent. owing to feed shortage. It is not anticipated that there will be any forced diminution in pure-bred meat animals, and the dairy stock will stand next in line for conservation. Horses, especially those kept for pleasure purposes, will be put on short feed, and it is quite possible some of them may be used for human food.

This, however, is only part of a change which is promised in English agriculture. Three million acres of grazing lands are to be broken up this year, and more will be broken next year, the intention being to put the United Kingdom in a position to be permanently practically independent of foreign food supplies so far as grain is concerned. What the effect of a lessening of pasture and increase in grain producing area will ultimately be in the matter of the production of meat and dairy products it is difficult to say. In England, the stock-carrying capacity of a given area of grass is much more nearly equal to the carrying ability of an equal area in cultivated land than is the case here, because the pasture season there is much longer than with us. Still it is probable that with an increase in the cultivated area the country will, under normal conditions, be able to produce more wheat than now for human food without necessarily lessening live stock holdings. In fact, there may be an increase in the latter, and the United Kingdom may in future years be made well independent of imported meat and dairy products as well as wheat.

YES! LIFT A CORN OFF WITHOUT PAIN!

Cincinnati man tells how to dry up a corn or callus so it lifts off with fingers.

You corn-pestered men and women need suffer no longer. Wear the shoes that nearly killed you before, says this Cincinnati authority, because a dairy farmer who keeps his cows will in the end be in better shape for making a profit than the man who materially reduces his herd.

A small bottle of freezeone costs very little at any drug store, but will positively take off every hard or soft corn or callus. This should be tried, as it is inexpensive and is said not to irritate the surrounding skin. If your drugist hasn't any freezeone tell him to get a small bottle from us from his wholesale drug house. It is fine stuff and acts like a charm every time.

Dodging a Zepp.

A British Submarine Commander Outwitted the Germans

One of the cleverest cases of bluff that has yet come to light was that of a British submarine commander off the German coast. There had been a sea and air raid on Cuxhaven, at the mouth of the Elbe, and when it was over a British airman was being rescued by a submarine from his seaplane, which had come down on the surface of the sea and could not rise.

While the rescue act was in progress a Zeppelin flew along overhead, and regarded the scene below rather inquisitively. Nonplussed, the submarine commander waved his hands to the Zepp, so as to give the impression that he was a German U-boat capturing a British seaplane.

This bluffing the Zepp flew away, but, being a bit suspicious, returned a little later to make closer investigation. By this time the airman had been got aboard the submarine, the hatch was closed, and the boat dived. It was just in time for, as it shot down to the depths the bombs dropped by the infuriated Zepp could be heard exploding in the water overhead.

A Free Prescription You Can Have Filled and Use at Home.

Boston, Mass.—Victims of eye strain and other eye diseases, and those who wear glasses, will be glad to know that Doctors and Eye Specialists now agree there is real hope and help for them. Many whose eyes were failing any they have had their eyes restored and many who once wore glasses are now free from them. One man says, after using it: "I was almost blind. Could not see to read at all. Now I can read everything without my glasses, and my eyes do not hurt any more. At night they would close and I could not see in the morning. It was like a miracle to me." A lady who used it says: "My eyes became just with it, and after using this prescription for fifteen days everything seems clear. I can read even fine print without my glasses. I have used it, and have discovered my long distance glasses altogether. I can count the stars in the sky and the trouble and expense of ever getting glasses."

Dr. Beck, an eye specialist of nearly twenty years' practice, says: "A patient came to me who was suffering from a chronic inflammation of the eye, with all the concomitant symptoms, as morning agglutination of the lids, chronic con-

FOLLOWING DISEASE

Banished by the Wonderful Tonic Powers of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills

How often victims of disease such as a gripe, fever, or contagious troubles are left weak and languid, and find it impossible to get on their feet after the disease itself has disappeared. They do not pick up strength as they ought; remain listless, tired and discouraged. The reason for this is that the blood has been impoverished by the ravage of the disease through which the victim has passed. Strength will not return until the blood has been enriched. The blood can be purified and enriched by no other medicine as quickly and as surely as by Dr. Williams' Pink Pills—to enrich the blood and strengthen the nerves is the whole mission of these pills. Thousands have found them beneficial in bringing strength and energy after disease has left them weak and run down. Miss Hannah Hamilton Everett, Ont., says: "After an attack of influenza I was run down and anemic that I could scarcely walk. I had no color, no appetite, and constant headaches. The medicine I was taking was doing me no good and I had almost lost hope of getting better. I was asked to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, and it was not long until I could feel that they were helping me, and after taking them for a couple of months I was completely cured. I now never fail to recommend these pills to anyone needing blood building."

You can get these pills through any dealer in medicine or by mail at 50 cents a bottle, or six bottles for $2.50 from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

An Englishman has patented a new laundry soap which he claims will blue clothes while lathering them for washing. It contains lard, caustic soda, and a blueing agent, and is a suitable eye pigment. The question arises as to whether or not articles requiring more soaping than others will receive more than the desired amount of blueing, and whether the subsequent rinsing will remove the coloring obtained in the rubbing process.

junctions and aphthae. Her eyes were not congested had the dull, sufficed expression common to such cases. Having run out of her medicine I tried this treatment and not only overcame her distressing condition, but strange and amazing as it may seem, she strengthened her eyesight that she was able to dispense with her distance glasses and her headache and neuralgia left her. In this instance I should say her eyesight was improved 100%.

The British Artillery

In the spring of 1915 the Italian artillery, heavy and light, was declared by military critics to be the finest in Europe, while the woeful weakness in artillery of the British army was common talk. Now the British are not only outmatching the German gun for gun and shell for shell, but have heavy artillery to spare to reinforce the Italian batteries. It may take John Bull a long time to reach the front, but when he does arrive he gets there with both feet.—New York World.

General use for years has won them a leading place in medicine. A trial will attest their value.

The Home Water Supply

Abundance of Water Elevates the General Tone of the Material Side of Living

Water in the house, to use lavishly for all wholesome conveniences, seems at first thought beyond the means of frugal people, who have earned by hard labor all they have to spend. To many, who have not closely considered the costs and the benefits, it appears extravagant. Instead of that it is one of the greatest of house economies. Almost every farmer could afford the luxury of all water conveniences in his home. Like their fellows, sunshine, wholesome food and fresh air, they do not weaken the muscular, mental or moral fibres of life. When one has been compelled to use any of these debased for a time how satisfying is the pleasure of purity and abundance.

As an investment for the home I know of nothing likely to yield so much in return in saving woman's strength in increasing house comfort, in preserving health, in insuring satisfaction in housework and in elevating the general tone of the material side of living.—Dr. J. W. Robertson, in "Home Waterworks."

strain arising from protracted intense research work. Bon-Opto used according to directions resulted in surprising results. I found my eyes remarkably strengthened, so much so I have put aside my glasses without discomfort. Several of my colleagues have also used it and we are agreed as to its results. In a few days, under my observation, the eyes of an astigmatism have been improved that glasses may be wonderfully benefited by the use of Bon-Opto and if you want to strengthen your eyes, go to any drug store and get a bottle of Bon-Opto. Drop one Bon-Opto tablet in a fourth of a glass of water and let it dissolve. With this liquid breathe the eyes two to four times daily. You should notice your eyes clear up perceptibly after the first use. The start, and inflammation and redness will quickly disappear. If your eyes bother you even a little it is your duty to take steps to have them cured. It is too late. Many hopelessly blind have been cured if they had cared for their eyes in time.

Role: A city physician to whom the above article was submitted, says: "Bon-Opto is a remarkable eye remedy. Its constituent ingredients are well known to ophthalmologists and widely prescribed by them. I have used it in my own eyes and in the eyes of patients whose eyes were strained through overwork or burning eyes. It can highly recommend itself as a remedy for watery, itching, burning eyes, red, swollen eyes, and in all cases of eye trouble. It is one of the very few preparations that can be used in the eyes of the most delicate and most sensitive eyes. It is an ideal preparation, the secret remedy. It is the only eye remedy that guarantees to strengthen the eyes 50 per cent. in one week in many instances, or refund the money. It is a standard eye remedy. It is sold by the McDermond Drug Co., Calgary, the Vancouver and O'Brien Drug Co., Vancouver, and McCallum Drug Co., Winnipeg."

GERMAN METHODS IN BELGIUM CREATE REAL REIGN OF TERROR

HORRORS OF THE GERMAN INQUISITION REVEALED

A Frightful Account Is Given of the So-called Judicial Methods Of the Germans in Dealing With the Persecuted Inhabitants Of Stricken Belgium

An interview was had by a representative of Reuter's Agency in London with a Belgian gentleman of high social position, who succeeded in escaping from Belgium, knowing that he was about to fall into the hands of the German secret police. He gives a terrible account of the Germans' so-called judicial methods, which have produced a veritable reign of terror, in many respects resembling the procedure of the Inquisition.

"In a vague way," he said, "the world knows something of German military tribunals, but I doubt if it is realized that something like one thousand citizens are condemned every month for patriotic offences. During the three months preceding January last, forty-two death sentences were inflicted in one court alone.

"Nobody who has not gone through it can realize the extent of terror which prevails, owing to the methods employed by the German secret police, and for obvious reasons very few people are able to give any precise particulars.

"A German sergeant was ordered to arrest 'Francis-Tireurs' in the early days of the war, but as he was unable to find any, and not daring to present himself before his chief empty-handed, he simply arrested the first unoffending peasants he met on the road. This sort of thing now happens daily in the campaign of persecution directed against the patriots.

"Large towns like Brussels and Antwerp continue to swarm with spies, and they often visit small towns and even villages where they think there is the slightest chance to prosecute their abominable trade. Occasionally the secret police disguise themselves as escaped French prisoners, or pose as guides ready to help the distracted people to escape through the electric wire frontier. When they have succeeded in gaining the confidence of their victims, they promptly denounce them to the commandant.

"The next stage is the tragedy in prison, from which escape is almost impossible. Every day the victims are visited in their cells, not by judges and lawyers, but by German officers and police bullies, who wring confessions from them. I know one man who was cross-examined in this way for eight hours without intermission and without food. When the first torturer was exhausted he was replaced by the second, who continued the ordeal. The prisoner, refusing to confess, was threatened and struck in the face.

"Some times 'gentle provocateurs,' disguised as prisoners, mix with the patriots, abusing the Germans and complaining of their cruelty. In this way they obtain the sympathy and confidence of their companions, and if the latter are unwise enough to trust them, they are promptly confronted with them and obliged to confess their false statements. I also know cases where relatives and friends of prisoners were arrested, and the latter were told that their mother or sister had denounced them.

"Trial is a mere farce. In most cases the defendants may not receive the help of a Belgian barrister. This depends entirely on the good-will of the governor of the district. The usual procedure is for the German clerk, after the indictment has been read, to speak a few words for the defence, without having any knowledge of the case. If a barrister does attend the case, he is not allowed to communicate with the prisoner, either in prison or elsewhere, so that it is impossible for him to obtain knowledge of the facts.

"The only way to help the prisoner is to obtain information by bribery from the clerk in charge of the dossier, and after the man has been condemned to address a petition to the Governor-General."

Amusement Features at Moose Jaw Ranchers' Fair Will Be of Exceptional Merit

The amusement features to be provided for visitors to the Ranchers' Fair and Livestock Show, to be held at Moose Jaw, July 17th to 20th, including the largest Midway ever seen in Western Canada, a number of marvellous platform vaudeville and acrobatic attractions, and the presence of a wonderfully intrepid young woman balloonist from Lille, France, promise to excel anything of the kind ever attempted in the Prairie Provinces.

On the Midway the visitor will find, among a large number of other things, a model submarine show, in which a perfect copy of the present death dealing sea weapon is submerged and operated before the visitors' eyes; an enormous Ferris Wheel; a rare exhibition of different specimens of the animal kingdom; a merry-go-round; a good old fashioned dinky Minstrel Show; a Fat Girl, the fattest who ever lived; and a large variety of other amusements. In addition, the peculiar little people from Uncle Sam's islands, who live on the flesh of dogs, and have such peculiar religious customs. In addition to these, other attractions without number will be there to lure and entertain the visitor, and anyone who would enjoy four days of amusement together with a great Stampede, horse races, and an agricultural and livestock show, should not fail to come to Moose Jaw the third week of July.

In addition, if death does not cut short her young life, Mlle. Lucille Belmont, of Lille, France, will be seen every day in a death defying, heart throbbing balloon ascension, and mad plunging drop to earth, which is only checked by the use of three parachutes. Mlle. Belmont is today recognized as the world's foremost lady aviator, and her performances here in themselves will be well worth the trip.

Germans Admit Subs Falling Off

According to the Rotterdam correspondent of the London Daily News, the German reports on the destruction wrought by the submarines not only show a regular daily falling off, but are becoming more vague in character, being almost only put back in less conspicuous places in the German newspapers, the places on the front pages being taken by highly laudatory reports of the latest air raids on England.

Tunnelling the English Channel

What the Value Would Be Brought Home During War Times

War, that for long years has filled Englishmen's minds with fear of invasion if a tunnel were to be built under the English channel, strangely enough has pointed the very wisdom of the great undertaking. If there had been a tunnel under the English channel during this war, Great Britain would have been relieved of the task of conveying to and from France the troops, transports and hospital ships, which convey men and munitions and wounded and sick to and from the battlefields of France. The allies could laugh at threatening submarines in the English Channel, and things the Englishmen see today, and it is more than likely that one of the first great after-the-war engineering feats that will be undertaken will be the construction of the English channel tunnel.

At a recent meeting of the Royal Geographical society in London, Sir Francis Fox explained that owing to the necessity of keeping the tunnel well within the thickness of the grey chalk, which is the rock of the southern hills of England, there would be a slight curve. The maximum depth of water over the channel would be from 160 to 180 feet, and the roof of chalk over the structure has been fixed at a minimum of 100 feet.

The tunnel would consist of two tubes of 18 ft. diameter. All the work would be done by electrically-driven machinery, and excavation and other operations would be carried on simultaneously at many points, and a record speed would be reached. The tunnel could be worked and ventilated and pumped by electricity from a Kent power-station, ten miles inland.

The tunnel would have a dip in the level of the rails forming a water-lock, by which the tunnel would be filled with water from floor to roof for the length of a mile. This would be under control of emergency, and the entrance and exit of both tunnels would be under the gun-fire of the Dover forts.

Trains would be run direct from London to Paris in less than an hour, and passengers would be able to go from London to Constantinople, Petrograd, and by the Siberian express to the Far East without change of carriage.

Liquid Fire

How This Terrible Weapon of Destruction Is Projected

The Germans have not hesitated to introduce any of the ancient or modern weapons of offence and defence which they thought would be of advantage, regardless of The Hague Conventions or accepted standards of civilization. Among these is "liquid fire," a weapon of value principally because of its demoralizing effect upon those attacked. There have been casualties resulting from "liquid fire," but it is the psychological effect that is sought.

The apparatus usually consists of a metal tank holding about four gallons of liquid to which is added a section of pipe from this tank to a rubber hose at the other end, in which there is a smaller metal pipe about a yard long fitted with a nozzle and a friction igniter, as well as an oil-burning wick. There is a valve near the tank and another near the nozzle. Benzol, from coal, is used in the proportions and are carried in the tank under a pressure of approximately 300 lbs. per square inch, this pressure being maintained by compressed nitrogen and inert gas having no effect upon the contents of the tank. The tank and accessories are carried by one man, while the nozzle is carried by another, in position when liquid is being burned. Or it may be fixed in position and operated by the same man who carries the tank.

In use a cap is drawn from the end of the nozzle and a wick burning kerosene or similar oil is thereby lighted, since the cap is a friction igniter. The oil is then turned on and is ignited as it leaves the nozzle under great pressure. The result is a flame of burning oil about 30 yards long. For two-thirds of this distance the flame is straight, but it then turns up as does any other flame. The flame may be directed against the ground, but care must be taken not to deflect it too sharply, as it may strike the ground and turn back toward those operating the device. It is therefore not much used to turning down into a trench.

It is claimed by an expert from the American Chemical Society that liquid fire is not so efficient as a weapon now that it is understood by the troops and means for defense have been worked out. It can readily be understood, however, that a number of such devices would be a valuable accessory, especially by raiding parties.—H. E. Howe, in Toronto Globe.

CANADA AND THE UNITED STATES UNITE IN FEEDING THEIR ALLIES

ENGLISH-SPEAKING NATIONS IN CLOSER BOND

The Results of the British War Mission to the United States Will Have a Far-Reaching Effect, Making It Possible for the U. S. To Co-Operate More Fully With the Allies

A Serious War

Least the U.S. Alone Should Have to Settle With Germany

Frank A. Vanderbilt, president of the National City Bank, New York, in a recent Liberty Loan speech said:

"I am afraid that people are not altogether awake to the seriousness of this war; not altogether comprehending that we are in, that we are in a very serious war—that war that might even come to our own shores. It is easy to think that Germany is 3,000 miles away, surrounded by the greatest armies that were ever assembled; that the war is likely to be open before we can get any men into it; that we are like a manufacturer or merchant who is getting his materials to keep on buying at rather exorbitant prices, and that we are doing a good thing in loaning to the Allies, but that we are not in a very serious situation. As I conceive it, it is much more serious than that."

"Now, just let me take one or two contingencies that are perfectly possible. We have had a revolution in Russia. No man in America or Russia can tell what the future of that situation is. It is surely conceivable that Russia might make a separate peace. I do not believe she will, but it is conceivable. It would happen that there are a million and a half prisoners in Russia. Suppose all the forces of the Central Powers on the Eastern border might be withdrawn; suppose their forces were augmented by a million and a half returned prisoners; suppose Russia's food stores were opened for Germany; and all that happening very promptly, which is a conceivable thing. In that event could the armies of England and France on the western border withstand the onslaught? Is it not conceivable that if some solution is not found for the submarine menace England may be brought to the point of starvation? No matter what her wealth may be, starving men could not fight."

"I tell you it is within the possibilities that we may be losing not a Liberty Loan to pay for a war we hope successfully to wage but a loan to pay the cost of a war Germany has been waging on civilization. This is no wild picture. I certainly do not believe it is within the future of events, but there is a possibility enough in it to cause us to wake up as a nation, to make us recognize that we are in a great and uncertain war, and that we must support the military movement which this government has got to make."

Steel That Won't Rust

A steel that neither rusts nor tarnishes has been discovered in England. It is what is commonly called an alloy steel; that is, it differs from ordinary steel in that it contains a special element of metal. In this case it is chromium, which is mainly responsible for bestowing the stainless, and rustless properties. By incorporating from twelve to thirteen per cent. of this metal in mild carbon steel the new properties are obtained. An English metallurgist, in gathering together some rods of steel which had lain a long time in his laboratory, noticed that some of them were badly rusted or stained, a few were as bright as when originally made. This led to the present discovery and manufacture of the steel.

The British war mission left American soil after six weeks' of conferences which have reached into every phase of American life and are expected vitally to affect the future of the U.S. if not of the world.

Uncle Sam now knows the Allies' needs in detail and in the order of their importance, the Allies know America's resources and the degree of their availability. Thus it is possible for the United States to contribute to the separation a century into co-operation with the grand alliance in the way most calculated to bring success.

While there have been no formal agreements or binding treaties, Great Britain and the United States undoubtedly have been placed on a closer basis of friendship than at any time since the separation a century and a quarter ago, and Mr. Balfour, who was in the U.S. longer than any previous foreign secretary had been in America since the Napoleonic wars, has seen realized his life dream of closer sympathy between the two great branches of the English speaking people.

The most far-reaching understandings arrived at have been in trade matters. In general the United States will give the Allies preferential treatment in commerce. Details, however, could not be agreed upon, as congress has not yet passed the legislation necessary to deal with embargo, trading with the enemy, control of cargo space, and the like.

A definite understanding has been reached to cover both American and Canadian wheat for sale to the Allied wheat executive. Canada will co-operate fully with the U.S., probably through the proposed food administration bureau, and will agree to the control of prices if that policy be adopted in legislation now before the U.S. congress. The wheat executive committee has supplied the figures of its needs, expressed confidence that they can be met, and shown how the results will be allotted among the various Allies.

Munitions control and purchase will be similarly centralized, through the Allied buying committee, though without price control. The council of national defence has charged itself with so increasing manufacture as to provide for the American war without cutting off exports vitally needed abroad.

The United States is considering the invitation extended by the British that all the Allies send permanent representatives to sit on the Allied commissions in London, including those on wheat, munitions, shipping and general supplies.

In finance the mission has secured government loans to Great Britain at 3 1/2 per cent., or at cost to the U.S. government and at a saving of 1 1/2 to 2 per cent. to the British.

The British visitors were able to clear away many doubts as to military training and other technical matters. The fruits of Great Britain's experience have been available in guiding American officials and lessons learned by Britain have proved decisive on many points of policy. The mission found it necessary to leave a number of experts in Washington as attaches to the embassy to help handle the enormous amount of new work developed. Lord Esher, Percy and C. J. Phillips will continue trade discussion, and Geoffrey Butler, of the foreign office, will continue his services to the press. A house near the embassy has been taken as an overflow.
